

Press Release

October 1, 2006

Spry Methods, Inc. Awarded GSA IT-70 Schedule Contract [GS-35F-0008T]

Spry Methods, a leading Financial Management and IT Services company, has been awarded a General Services Administration (GSA) Federal Supply Service (FSS) Information Technology Schedule Contract to provide services to the Government.

The GSA Schedule award is the result of a lengthy process in which the GSA evaluated Spry Methods' capabilities, organizational structure, past performance and customer satisfaction, among other criteria, and determined that the company was qualified to provide commercial IT services directly to government agencies. This award along with the company's SBA 8(a) certification and outstanding reputation make Spry Methods a highly desirable resource for federal buyers.

"Recently, we have experienced an expansion of our business beyond our core [Financial Management] and into IT and ERP services. The GSA Schedule gives us yet another vehicle to provide these services to federal customers," said Ed Kim, Co-President.

"This [GSA Schedule] award is in line with our strategy to grow our IT presence in the Federal Civilian market to complement our significant base of DoD business," said Ted Ahn, Co-President.

Media Contact:
Spry Methods, Inc.
marcom@sprymethods.com

##